

Music at the festive Board

The Tyler's Song

Allegretto

"Are your Glasses charged in the West and

The first system of musical notation for 'The Tyler's Song'. It features a treble and bass staff in 2/4 time, with a key signature of two flats (B-flat and E-flat). The melody is in the treble staff, and the accompaniment is in the bass staff. The lyrics are: "Are your Glasses charged in the West and South? the wor-ship-ful Mas-ter cries. "They're charged in the West, they're charged in the

The second system of musical notation. The melody continues with the lyrics: South? the wor-ship-ful Mas-ter cries. "They're charged in the West, they're charged in the South," are the War-dens promp re - plies. Then to our fi - nal toast to - night, your

The third system of musical notation. The melody continues with the lyrics: South," are the War-dens promp re - plies. Then to our fi - nal toast to - night, your glass-es free - ly drain, Hap-py to meet, sor-ry to part, Hap-py to meet a - gain...

The fourth system of musical notation. The melody continues with the lyrics: glass-es free - ly drain, Hap-py to meet, sor-ry to part, Hap-py to meet a - gain...

Chorus
Hap - py to meet a - gain Hap - py to meet a - gain

The fifth system of musical notation, marked as the Chorus. The melody continues with the lyrics: Hap - py to meet a - gain Hap - py to meet a - gain

Hap - py to meet, Sor - ry to part, Hap - py to meet a - gain.

The sixth system of musical notation. The melody continues with the lyrics: Hap - py to meet, Sor - ry to part, Hap - py to meet a - gain.